TRIBUTE/CONDOLENCE ON THE PASSING OF A BELOVED BROTHER-IN-LAW: PROFESSOR ARDO CHIMAH EZEOMAH

It is with a heavy heart that I write to express my deepest condolences on the transition of my brother-in-law, Professor Ardo Chimah Ezeomah, married to my late husband's eldest sister, Mrs. Charity Ezeomah (Nee Uwa). The news of his passing, though at a ripe old age of ninety, has left a deep void in our hearts, as we would have loved him to have lived longer but, God knows best.

He was of high integrity and devoted to his family. To have lived for ninety years is a blessing in itself, but to have filled those years with such purpose and impact is a legacy that will endure for generations. As a professor, he dedicated his life to the pursuit and dissemination of knowledge, contributing significantly to the academic landscape of our nation. He was the founding father of Nomadic Education in Nigeria, the Inaugural Executive Secretary of the National Commission for Nomadic Education and Professor of Education at the University of Jos from where he retired from service.

He was, in every sense, a pillar of his community and a man whose counsel was sought after and valued. He was a man of great substance, whose presence commanded respect not through volume, but through the depth of his character. While we mourn his physical absence, we must also celebrate an extraordinary life well-lived. He has run his race with remarkable grace and has now earned his eternal rest in the bosom of the Almighty.

My prayers are with you, Aunty Charity, his beloved wife, his children, grandchildren, and all those who loved him within and outside the family. May the Lord grant you all the fortitude to bear this irreplaceable loss. We will miss him sorely.

Please accept my deepest sympathy.
